Board to chart direct course to excellence and equity this fall

Boulder Valley Board of Education President Helayne Jones and Superintendent Chris King are committed to greater outreach this year to BVSD internal and external stakeholders. The success of this outreach will be rooted in the clarity of the Board's policy goals and the transparency of the district's public accountability.

Recently, the Board launched discussions about how best to prioritize its policymaking work and create alignment with the instructional and operational practices of the district. At their retreat in June the Board identified the need to streamline BVSD's alignment of district goals, Board policies and superintendent performance expectations.
