

Are you (or a teenager you know):

- × Having trouble in school
- × Not getting along with friends or family
- × Feeling angry a lot
- × Using drugs or alcohol

University of Colorado at Denver & Health Sciences Center's Adolescent Research Center in Louisville, CO offers a comprehensive evaluation and payment for time and travel to teenagers between 13 and 17 years old for participating in a study of a new intervention, utilizing training in traditional martial arts, for dealing with early substance use and other related problems which may put them at risk for becoming more involved with drugs or alcohol.

If you, or someone you know, would be interested in more information about participating in this study, please call (720) 890-8222.

The study Principal Investigator is Robert Davies, MD, Associate Professor,
Department of Psychiatry, UCDHSC, (303) 315-0452
